Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Describe past experiences in communicative situations.

Ask your partner:

- When was the last time you celebrated something special?
- How do you like to celebrate?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about past experiences.
- I can make and respond to invitations.
- I can make and respond to requests.
- I can show interest and surprise.

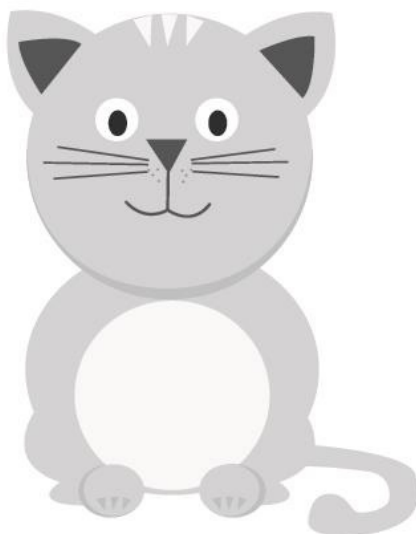

Let's Explore!

Sally makes a last-minute phone call ... What's up? Let's find out!

* You can use "what's up?" to show interest. It is informal.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Sally: Hey Peter! Can I talk to you?
Peter: Sure! What's up?
Sally: Well ... I wanted to tell you something ... I'm heading to Paris tomorrow!
Peter: Are you kidding me? When did you decide to go?
Sally: I thought about it a while ago. I bought the ticket last week.
Peter: Why didn't you tell us anything last night?
Sally: It was Vanessa's farewell dinner!
Peter: Wow ... I didn't see that one coming!
Sally: I know ... listen, could you take care of something for me?
Peter: OK ... What is it?
Sally: Someone needs to look after my cat. I'd like you to do it.
Peter: No problem. I love Meenee!
Sally: Thank you so much.
Peter: Sure. We could go for cocktails one last time!
Sally: I'd love to do that!
Peter: Perfect! You can get the bill this time!

Let's Practice!

Learning Points

Socializing

You can make invitations when you talk about special occasions.

You use modal verbs like Would you ... ? or Should we ... ? for formal invitations.

You use expressions like Let's ... or Why don't ... ? for informal or casual invitations.

When you are the customer, it is important to use polite words and expressions when you make a request.

When you work in a restaurant, you use polite words and expressions to ask someone if they are ready to order.

Formal Invitations	Informal Invitations	Responding to Invitations
Would you ... ? Should we ... ? Shall we ... ? I would like to ...	Let's ... Why don't ... ? How about ... ? Do you want to ... ?	Yes, that would be very nice. I'd love that. I'd love to, but ...

Learning Points

	Question	Answer
Customer asks the waiter ...	May I see the menu? Do you have anything vegetarian? Could we have ... ? We'd like to hear your specials, please.	Certainly, Sir/Madam/Miss. Yes, we have ... Tonight, the specials are ... With pleasure.
Waiter / Waitress asks the customer ...	Are you ready to order? Would you like to start with ... ? Can I get you some drinks to start? Will that be all?	Yes. I'd like ... I need a few more minutes. Yes, thank you very much.

Examples:

• Ann: Shall we go to a restaurant tonight?

Bob: I would love that, thank you.

Waiter: Are you ready to order?

Ann: Yes. I'd like to start with some appetizers, please.

Learning Points

The Simple Past tense

The Simple Past talks about completed, finished actions that could be at any time in the past.

You use Past Time Expressions when you want to say when something happened.

Look at the chart to review the Simple Past tense in its different forms:

Affirmative	Negative	Interrogative
Subject + verb + ed	Subject + did not + infinitive without to	Did + subject + infinitive without to
Vanessa visited her aunt last year.	Vanessa did not visit her aunt last year.	Did Vanessa visit her aunt last year?

Examples:

- I wanted to tell you something. (affirmative)
- I didn't see that one coming! (negative)
- When did you decide to go? (interrogative)
